Capcom Games.Q: How to access an external's widget by using onPressed method in react Native I am trying to access an external view's widget by using onPressed method. I know that it's possible to access the views by using: Navigator.popTo(FirstView)
But, if we have a view like: import { Text, View, Button } from'react-native'; export default class FirstView extends React.Component { static propTypes = {}; constructor(props) { super(props);
this.handleButtonPress = this.handleButtonPress.bind(this); } componentWillMount() { console.log('mount'); } handleButtonPress() { console.log('button clicked'); } render() { return (); } } If we need to use this.props.navigator.push or this.props.navigator.pushAsync, what should be the onPress method? A: Use alert instead of console.log class FirstView extends React.Component { static propTypes = {}; constructor(props) { super(props); this.handleButtonPress = this.handleButtonPress.bind(this); } componentWillMount() { alert('mount'); } handleButtonPress() { alert(' e79caf774b
